

Whistle and I'll Come to You (1968) 9.25.20

- ❖ *Whistle and I'll Come to You \(1968\)* --- Here's a link to the Youtube version of the movie we watched for the show this week. It's as good a quality as we've been able to find online, although there are comparable versions also up on Youtube. We're unsure whether this movie, or the rest in this series of BBC ghost stories, are available on home video in any capacity.
- ❖ "Oh, Whistle, and I'll Come to You, My Lad" by M.R. James --- Here's the link to the original short story by M.R. James.
- ❖ "The Gaze of the Spectral Setting in the 1968 Adaptation of M.R. James's 'Oh, Whistle, and I'll Come to You, My Lad'" by Anne Keithline and Jacek Mydia from *Avant* --- Here's a link to one of the few academic resources we found discussing this movie, and it offers a lot of fun things to consider while watching the film. The essay introduces a concept of a "spectral gaze" that both traps our lead and consistently shifts audience identification. Fun read.
- ❖ "Whistle and I'll Come to You" by Adam Scovell from *Celluloid Wickerman* --- Here's a link to a series of articles from Celluloid Wickerman discussing both this film and the others in the BBC ghost series. I absolutely love this website, and Scovell has many incredible articles discussing folk horror. These articles are no exception, as Scovell dedicates a multipart series to discussing the use of sound in the BBC ghost series. We love this website.
